Palm Cemetery

Location: Palm Cemetery Road, within Woodstock Township, Section 9. There is a large stone-sign and a flag-pole at the entrance, which reads: "PALM CEMETERY". The (aging) "Palm Church" still stands adjacent to Palm Cemetery Road. The church is not in use (indeed, it is "boarded-up", per recent information obtained from local residents, c.f. photos below).

GPS Coordinates: Latitude: 40.07454, Longitude: -90.63903

Directions: exit S.W. from the city of Rushville. Follow US-24 for about 2-1/2 miles past the city-limits. Palm Cemetery Road is on the West side of the highway, as you travel South. Turn right (to head West). Follow Palm Cemetery Road, Westbound for about 1-1/2 miles – the road does curve-around. There is an access road which enters into the cemetery (on the North side of Palm Cemetery Road), which forms a "loop" in and back out of the cemetery - shaped like a rectangle with a curved loop at the extreme North end – simply follow it all the way around to return back to the entrance. Please park on, and remain on that access road (please do not park on the lawn nor the graves).

Setting: Palm Cemetery is situated in a rural area. It is one of idyllic Illinois farm country (a truly peaceful "final resting-place"). The nearby farm fields are bordered-by a woods comprised of various species of deciduous trees and a few coniferous trees – spruce pines, cedars and arborvitae. As of this writing, the cemetery is surrounded on two sides by farm fields, whereas the boundary lines to the East and North are wooded.

Editor's note (2011-03-13): My Grandmother's sister, Wilhelmina "Minnie" Annette Stremmel-Naught (and her husband, George Washington Naught) are buried here (RIP). –Robert C Kuhmann, Delavan, Wisconsin.
